THE SUNDERLAND SORROW

Additional Details of the Frightful Calamity.

London, 17.—The terrible calamity on Saturday evening is the subject of universal unhappy comment. The hall has been surrounded to-day by distressed and excited crowds. The stairway from the gallery at the top of the landing, at which occurred the pressure which led to the accident, is from five to six feet wide, and the gallery door, through which the children were allowed to pass one at a time, which circumstance is regarded as the direct cause of the calamity, was fitted with a bolt which lodged in a hole in the floor, thus narrowing the passage way for the purpose of ticket-taking, when the audience was entering the hall.
The janitor says the scene behind the gallery door was fearful. Some of the children were fixed upright in a heap and actually gasping for breath, so great was the pressure of the crowd behind them. The majority of the children in the hall were under 12 years of age when the disaster happened. The janitor and wife hastily summoned bystanders and went to work immediately to give the sufferers relief. They first sent out of the building by other exits the little ones still in the hall, by this way avoiding the fear of a further crush. Those who went to the rescue of the sufferers found the work of removing the heap of bruised, crushed and suffocated bodies, no easy task. Two hundred children were rescued from the pile who were partially injured. Many others were found in an unconscious state, but of these a number were restored at once to their homes.
Those who were dead or whose wounds were regarded as fatal were laid out in the hall when local doctors in attendance used every effort to restore those in whom a spark of life could be detected. One eye witness stated that he saw lying on flag stones a short distance from the bottom of the stairs the dead bodies of four children. Many of those who came to assist in removing the dead and rescuing the living were utterly overcome by the distressing sight of so many dead and dying children.
London, 17.—A number of deaths have occurred since the first report, and the total list is now placed at 186. One of the persons who responded quickly to the call for help says many who volunteered to assist in rescuing the children sickened at the spectacle and fled from the distressing scene. The rescuers' efforts were directed towards reaching the children who were apparently alive. So tightly were the victims jammed together that it was regarded as dangerous to drag them out of the helpless mass lest the effort would result in pulling off limbs of living children as well as the mutilated dead. They therefore proceeded steadily and systematically to lift off the topmost. A few of those beneath had survived, and their moaning and low cries of pain could be distinctly heard amid the excitement, and cries of the be-raved parents and friends who were thronging the adjacent streets.

The disaster was referred to in all churches in Sunderland to day, and by many preachers in London. Prayers were offered for the parents and friends of the victims.
The staircases from the gallery was a winding one. But the audience and officials in at the time of the disaster were ignorant for some time of the terrible tragedy being enacted at the door. They were not informed till Graham, the hall keeper, who was strolling near by the scene of the calamity, was attracted by the groans and gave the alarm. Mr.
Fay, who gave the entertainment, was busy packing up his apparatus to depart, when a man rushed up to him and informed him of the disaster and immediately fell down speechless in a fit. Some of the families whose homes were so suddenly darkened lost over three children.
One man and wife pushed their way into the hall in which lay the bodies of the victims, and without betraying any emotion began to scan the faces of the dead.
Recognizing the face of one of his children, the father, pointing with his fingers exclaimed, "That's one." Passing on again he recognized another, and then a third. Staggering in a fit of agony, he cried, "My God, all gone," and overwhelmed with grief he sank to the floor.
In some homes there are five children dead.

Queen Victoria sent a telegram to the mayor of Sunderland, expressing grief over the disaster. The children of various Sunday schools sent telegrams of sympathy. Flags are at half mast. One formed lost thirty children by the calamity. Many survivors had their arms broken in the crush, and others are suffering from broken ribs and rupture of internal organs. Graham, hall-keeper, says children not twenty yards from the door came pressing forward unaware of the tragedy, thus making matters worse than they really were.
The scene inside the hall during the identification of the victims baffles description. It was painful in the extreme.
The faces of the dead children in almost every case were black and swollen from suffocation of which many died.
Many lips were cracked and bleeding, parents rushing wildly about would fall on the bodies of their dead children with loud wailing and weeping and clasp the unconscious forms in their arms, vainly endeavoring to note any sign of life.
Many poor mothers swooned away at the sight of the dead, while others wild and almost violent in their hysterical grief. The act of removing the dead from the hall to-day was the occasion for the renewal of the lamentation and confusion. Many parents rushed through the police cordon, appointed for the preservation of order, and there was a scene of great confusion. One of the witnesses of the calamity stated to-day that for the first five minutes there was great lack of assistance, and from this cause alone, certainly one hundred lives were lost.

The weather was warm and the passage way very close, so that in a short time after the catastrophe, a horrible, sickening stench came from the main outlet of the hall. The latest reports to-night figure up 188 dead. The greatest fear is felt that the number yet to be shown to have reached at least 200. The sagacity of the children to desire to receive the prizes promised them. Graham throws the blame of the calamity upon a man connected with the entertainment, who it appears, fastened the door half open in order that the prizes might be given the children one at a time, while leaving the hall. A lad was sitting on the railing near Murton street, crying, when a passer-by inquired the cause of his grief. "Why, sir," said he, "I was in the place there, and when I was coming out, a boy, that was dying bit my hands—that's him," he added, pointing to the corpse of a child lying near by.

Sunderland, 19.—Levi Henry Frederick Pensonby, private secretary to the Queen, telegraphed the Mayor of Sunderland that her majesty directed him to state that she is terribly shocked at the awful calamity in Victoria Hall on Saturday, and her heart bleeds for the sufferings of the many bereaved parents. She prays God to support them in their terrible distress. Sir Henry also says her majesty is most anxious to hear how the injured children are. Several of the children who left the exhibition before the accident occurred, state that they saw a man just before the rush partially close the door on the landing where the disaster took place. It will be proved at the inquest that the man bolted the door ajar in order to facilitate the distribution of toys to the children as they were leaving the premises, the box containing toys which had been placed in a position in readiness for the distribution of the prizes standing near the door.

The excitement over the catastrophe in Victoria Hall, Saturday night, continues intense. Some children who escaped say that reports spread through the gallery, at the close of the performance, that the child first out of the hall would get a prize, and consequently there was an eager rush for the doors.
Most of the bodies of the victims will be buried together in a long trench.
